Press Release

There's a better way to get to a business meeting in Texas

Local jet charter company offers charter-by-the-seat to a variety of cities in Texas.

Longview, TX, May 5, 2009: Business travelers in Texas now have an alternative to traveling to business meetings by car or airline. Stebbins Aviation, Inc., an FAA approved jet charter operator in Longview, Texas, announced today the ability for business people to buy a single seat on existing trips. "We have a core clientele that frequently travels to Dallas, Austin, Waco, and other locations in Texas" says Weldon Burnett, Director of Operations for Stebbins Aviation. Mr. Burnett said "This core clientele has given us permission to notify other business travelers when seats are available on business charter flights." For comparison, traveling from Longview to Austin by car would take 5 hours and cost $160 at the IRS rate of 50.5 cents per mile. Longview to Austin by Amtrak would take ten hours and cost about $50. Traveling by private jet from Longview to Austin would take 48 minutes. The cost of one seat would be about $600. Lower prices are possible if multiple seats are purchased. The question the business traveler needs to ask is 'What is the value of my time?'

Burnett goes on to say "Cities in Texas are not the only destination in which we have customers willing to share seats on our airplanes. Throughout the year we have trips to Orlando, Long Beach, Phoenix, and New York where charter-by-the-seat options are available."

To announce seat availability Stebbins Aviation intends to use email to notify business travelers of trips, dates and times. "If a business traveler would care to provide us with a point of contact email, then we can notify them of upcoming trips that have seats available" said Burnett.
